

Threats to your pet's health can also come from outside the home. Some plants and flowers can be harmful if your pet eats them. Below is a list of the more common plants and flowers that may be dangerous for your pet:

- Apricot, cherry, and plum trees and shrubs
- Aloe Vera – houseplant
- Amaryllis - houseplant
- Caster Bean – often grown as ornamental in MN
- Chrysanthemum – Annual and perennial in MN
- Cyclamen - houseplant
- Corn Plant – houseplant
- Daphne – can be hardy in zone 4
- Daylily and True Lily - Perennial
- Dogbane - native
- English Ivy – Perennial or houseplant
- Foxglove - Perennial
- Gloriosa Lily – houseplant or annual in MN
- Golden Pothos - houseplant
- Hibiscus – tropical for summers or indoors over winter
- Hyacinth and Tulip (especially the bulbs) - Perennials
- Hydrangea - Perennial
- Kalanchoe - houseplant
- Lily-of-the-Valley - Perennial
- Mother-in-Law Tongue – houseplant
- Narcissus, Daffodil, Paperwhite, and Jonquil - perennial
- Oleander – Tropical, can be grown indoors
- Peace Lily - houseplant
- Philodendron - houseplant
- Poinsettia – houseplant, can be moved outdoors for summer
- Rhododendron and Azalea – Perennial shrubs
- Sago Palm – Tropical - houseplant
- Schefflera - houseplant
- Stinging Nettle – grows wild here
- Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow Plant – subtropical, could be a houseplant
- Yew Bush - perennial